

Hank knows

Wading through high, muddy water
Can't move my feet, stuck in the ground
Trying to keep my head above water
Those little waves around my collar
Underneath a cascade of troubles
Steadily poured over me
I wish that I could change my name
Weariness settles inside of my brain

You took the rug from under my feet and I'm tumbling through the night
I'm running round in circles got no route no place to hide
Feeling scared about the wisdom crossing my mind
ut it all sounds so funny cause I've already lost my mind

I need a friend to talk about it
I need a light that won't disappear
But when the bell rings in wee hours
You all alone can't fighting this fear

You took the rug from under my feet and I'm tumbling through the night
`m running round in circles got no route no place to hide
Feeling scared about the wisdom crossing my mind
ut it all sounds so funny cause I've already lost my mind

You're going down, you're going down down down

Wading through high, muddy water
Can't move my feet, stuck in the ground
Trying to keep my head above water
Those little waves around my collar
Having a pointless conversation
Implies all the facts you couldn't change
You better rearrange your life
Waiting for mercy`s waiting in vain

You took the rug from under my feet and I'm tumbling through the night
`m running round in circles got no route no place to hide
Feeling scared about the wisdom crossing my mind
But it all sounds so funny cause I've already lost my mind

You're going down, you're going down down down
